THE POSITION – Logistics and Operations Planning Manager

Navtech Radar is looking for a talented Logistics and Operations Planning Manager to support the company through ongoing growth. In this role you will develop our internal and external material flow capability and ensure that we have a credible and capable plan to meet customers' needs.

As our Logistics and Operations Planning Manager, you will agree and execute the Sales & Operations Plan (S&OP). You will liaise with key stakeholders (Procurement, Production & Sales) and communicate the schedule. Your team will support the flow of orders through production, whilst ensuring that everyone is up to date on the plan and delivering to customer requirements. A knowledge of MRP (Material Requirements Planning) is essential and experience of using Kanban systems would be highly desirable.

You and your team will manage shipping into and out of the company. This will involve creation of the necessary shipping documents to ensure smooth transit to destination, any statutory reporting and management of temporary imports to minimise duties. An understanding of UK Export Control requirements is essential.

You will manage the warehouse and kitting function and work with the warehouse manager to ensure the safe and efficient storage of inventory and finished goods. The warehouse team are responsible for all aspects of inventory management and are required to ensure the right goods are presented to Production in good time for efficient manufacturing.
